

NEEDLEWORK GUILD OF CORNWELLS HAS OVER 1080 GARMENTS

Many More Are Yet To Be Received, It Is Reported At Meeting

SIX LAYETTE BASKETS

Labrador Section Reports 125 Garments and $35 In Cash

EDDINGTON, Nov. 8.—The 33rd annual meeting of the Cornwells Branch of the Needlework Guild of America was held on Saturday afternoon in the Presbyterian Church House. The women were welcomed by the President, Mrs. Frank A. Simons. A moment of silent prayer in memory of a faithful worker, Mrs. Henry Jones, followed.

Mrs. J. William Simons, secretary, read the minutes of last year's meeting, reporting that last year's total of garments was 1115. With many garments yet to come in, 1080 warm, beautiful garments have already been counted this year, many of which will be distributed to deserving people in this community.

The treasurer, Mrs. Herman Becker, reported that 300 garments and two bolts of materials had been purchased, made possible by the proceeds of several luncheons held during the year.

One new director, making 14 in all, has been added. Miss Wright, nurse at the Bensalem Township High School, is the new director.

Mrs. C. Burnley White, head of the Junior Guild, spoke of her work, resulting in six baby layette baskets, and Miss Isabelle S. Jones, head of the Labrador Section of the Cornwells Branch of the Guild, reported 125 garments and $35 sent to Labrador last May.

The audience greatly enjoyed two songs by Little Alice Jean and George Sperling of Croydon.

This year a most interesting speaker addressed the women, Mother Moore of the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Her work, for which she receives no money, but love in abundance, is done among the "service boys" and veterans of all wars at the Navy Yard and Hospital. She said her greatest joy is in contacting the boys' families and in telling them about the boys, who are far away from their homes.

She visits the men in the hospital and arranges entertainment for them. She has been arranging entertainments for the sailors since the time of the World War, when she cared for seven or eight thousand men. She encourages church attendance and contacts with private homes in Philadelphia. In 1919 Mother Moore started a custom which has made a real Christmas for the sailors and some of the poor children of Philadelphia. Last year 553 children from the age of six to 12 years were given their Christmas dinners and were visited by Santa Claus on the ships stationed at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. This remarkable woman arranges picnics and boat trips for the veterans, holds a Sunday School for the officers' children, accompanies the boys to church, often cares for the wives and families of the service men, and is greatly interested in the women prisoners in Moyamensing Prison. She ended her talk with a beautiful verse and an invitation to the women to visit the Navy Yard.

The meeting was closed with prayer offered by Mrs. Richard White, widow of a former pastor of the Eddington Presbyterian Church.

"Lost Horizon" Will Be Repeated Tonight at Grand

"Lost Horizon." Frank Capra's latest and most ambitious Columbia production starring Ronald Colman, had its popular-priced premiere showing at the Grand Theatre yesterday before crowds that hardly dared take their eyes off the screen lest something happen in that brief interval to break the continuity of so absorbing a tale. It will be shown again tonight.

In book form, "Lost Horizon" wove such a spell around hitherto charm-proof sophisticates that they went out of their way to hymn the praises of James Hilton's fantastic story of mystic and forbidden Tibet. As a photoplay, deservedly applauded from coast to coast in its triumphant roadshow tour, just concluded, "Lost Horizon" emerges as two for three of the "best ten" films of the year rolled into one.

Scenically and photographically it is a triumph. The illusion of being in faraway Tibet is retained throughout. The contrast between the ancient East and the modern West is striking but never incongruous. The impact of Occidental upon Oriental has the force of Kipling brought up to date and played against the stark background of an airplane disaster, a Chinese revolution and a breath-taking snowslide.

JUNIORS HAVE SOCIAL

Ciccanti-Ferraro Nuptial Ceremony Is Performed

A wedding took place Sunday at two p. m., in St. Ann's Catholic Church, when Miss Angeline Ferraro, 350 Jefferson avenue, became the bride of Carl Ciccanti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luigi Ciccanti, 1232 Pine Grove street.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Peter Pinci. Miss Frances Tamburella, organist, and Bruno Chiaromonte, violinist, played the wedding march. Percy G. Ford sang "Because" and "Ave Maria."

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ann Ferraro, a maid of honor; and three bridesmaids, Miss Angeline Burraw and Miss Agnes Polizzi, Bristol; and Miss Sarah Lombardo, Brooklyn. N. Y. Michael Morelli, Tacony, served as best man; and the ushers to the bridesmaid and maid of honor were Carman Denofa, Tacony, and Frank and Anthony Gesualdi.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gown in old ivory slipper satin, fashioned on semi-princess lines. The bodice was trimmed with ruching of same material and fastened in front with a gardenia. The long tight sleeves were puffed at the shoulders. The skirt fell in graceful lines from the waistline and ended in a long train. The long bridal veil and lace veil to the waistline were attached to a headpiece of old ivory satin, coronet shape. She wore old ivory satin slippers, and carried an arm bouquet of white roses and valley lilies.

The maid of honor was attractive in a gown of aqua moire taffeta, featuring short puffed sleeves. The long skirt, with bustle effect, ended in a short train. She wore a face veil, shoulder length, which was fastened to a satin head-piece, coronet shape; and also wore satin slippers. All accessories were rose tone, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaids were gowned in rose moire taffeta with aqua accessories, and featured the same style as the gown of the maid of honor. The face veils and head-pieces were styled alike, and each attendant carried arm bouquets of pink roses.

A dinner and dance for the bridal party was given in the afternoon at the Club Condona, Trenton, N. J. A reception was held in the evening at the bride's home for the immediate families and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ciccanti left for a week's honeymoon in New York City. They will reside in their newly-furnished apartment at 329 Lincoln avenue.

"CAN WE EDUCATE FOR PEACE?" IS ESSAY THEME

"Apply Modern Salesmanship to Peace," Says Bristol High Student

NAT'L EDUCATION WEEK

(One of a series of essays by Bristol high school students written in connection with National Education Week.)

By Emmett A. Hutchinson

"Can We Educate For Peace?"

"War is Hell!" This seems to be the general sentiment toward war. Yet at this very moment war is raging on two continents. Men, women and children are being slaughtered like cattle. Homes, factories, schools and hospitals are being destroyed ruthlessly. Suffering, fear, hate, jealousy run rampant throughout the world. Surely we "civilized" peoples of the world should do everything possible to wipe this scourge from the face of the earth. But do we?

In our schools and churches there is being waged a courageous battle for peace. We are taught that men are brothers and should live together in harmony and good fellowship. The virtue of peace and the moral obligation of man to his fellow men is stressed. Is this the right approach to peace? Is it not if we may judge from results. Therefore, it is quite evident that we must shift our attack on the problem.

We must first admit that man has plenty of sense, but does he always make use of it? We are all swayed more by emotion than by intellect. The "war lords" realize this and make use of their knowledge. The minds of the people are excited by clever propaganda and passionate speeches demanding "war to end war." The lecturer on good will is left talking into space when a brass band swings around the corner leading a parade of nattily uniformed soldiers.

"Fight fire with fire" is an old saw that is particularly applicable to this problem. We must dramatize peace. Give the people their brass bands and catchy slogans. Have mass meetings and passionate oratory. Apply modern salesmanship to peace. It must be more attractive to the people than war. Make it personal; we feel little concern over death and destruction unless it threatens our own little group of friends or ourselves. Stress the loss to the individual's pocketbook rather than the loss of life. Man always has and will continue to value gold more highly than life.

We must not become discouraged and strive for less than perfection in our relations with our fellow men. Low aim is failure. The man who aims high misses; the man who aims low hits—both are failures. If we must fail, let ours be a grand and glorious failure which will light the way for the ultimate success—"peace on earth, good will to men."

BRITAIN TO FACE MILITARY CONSCRIPTION

Study Reveals Serious Army Shortcomings, According To Report

MUST INCREASE FORCES

(Note: This is the first of two articles on Britain's military plight and the inevitability of conscription.—INS.)

By International News Service

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(INS)—Conscription in Great Britain is inevitable.

The politicians are afraid to say so, but within the last few days they have been presented with what amounts to an ultimatum by their army chiefs. So already a scheme has begun to break the news gently to the British public.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, ex-newspaperman, at present Secretary of State for War, has placed himself at the head of the Directorate of Public Relations at the War Office and gradually the dismal news that enforced enlistment is about to be enforced is being edged into the newspapers.

It was only a few months ago that the British Cabinet was confronted with the unpleasant fact that they had not enough troops on hand to supply their reinforcements to the Indian Army.

The cabinet dabbled with the situation and managed to gain a few thousand more recruits by the re-enlistment of reservists. But that did not placate the General Staff.

"We have a slightly bigger regular army," they said, "but we have a smaller reserve force so the position is really worse than it was before."

Britain's foreign commitments were pointed out to the cabinet. In the first place by agreement Britain is bound to preserve the independence of Egypt, even if it means an armed conflict. In Libya, within striking distance of Egypt with one of the finest military roads in existence leading right to the Egyptian border, is a garrison of at least 50,000 Italians with first rate transport, artillery, and the latest fighting and bombing planes.

That corps of Italians is being reinforced every month. They could move into Egypt, overcome the small inexperienced Egyptian Army before Britain could strike. Besides what has Britain to strike with?

The Home forces number less than 20,000, the rest of the regular army is

ST. ANN'S GOES INTO HIGH GEAR; WINS, 26-0

"Bill" Dougherty's Eleven Triumphs Over Morrisville Tigers to Score of 26 to 0

IS ONE-SIDED GAME

Coach "Bill" Dougherty's St. Ann's A. A. went into high gear yesterday afternoon on the local field as the localites clawed the Morrisville Tigers, 26-0, in a tilt which was one-sided from the start.

Within the first three minutes of play, the Purple and Gold scored twice and this was the signal for Coach Dougherty to begin to use the players who haven't had the experience that some of the veterans have. In fact, Dougherty did not use his stellar tackle, "Henny" Kornstedt nor his star guard, Tommy Proby, for very much action as both are nursing injuries.

At the beginning of the third session, the "Saints" scored another pair of touchdowns to bring their total to four during the afternoon. Another touchdown was turned back while the spectators prevented a possible sixth touchdown when they blocked "Sammy" Ross who was on another of his scoring rampages.

Twice "Sammy" Ross ran across the goal lines for touchdowns. He scored the first in the first two minutes of the game when he sprinted around left end to score without a hand being laid on him and this gave the "Saints" a 13-0 lead as previous to this, "Bill"

SHOPPING AND SMALL TALK

The Gourmet Society of New York is supposed to know all about what to eat. And a real live princess—even a princess from old Russia where princesses were merely noble, not royal—is supposed to know something about how to eat it.

So press service wires began to hum when Princess Alexandra Kropotkin told the Gourmet Society at Ridgefield, Conn., scene of the Gourmets' first eating excursion outside New York City, that the way to show your appreciation of a good sauce or gravy is to sop it up with your bread. It is noteworthy that the princess was speaking of sopping, not drinking; but, even so, her words had international significance of a sort.

There was another important aspect of that Gourmets' dinner at Ridgefield. "In order that the flow of gastric juices should not be impeded," says a dispatch, "members of the society formed all political talk during the meal and allowed only 'small talk' until after the coffee was served."

Some may challenge the distinction between political talk and small talk on the ground that most of the political talk which one hears is decidedly small stuff. Waiting that technically, however, we heartily commend the Gourmets' example to all banqueters—including political banqueters.

But we think the Gourmets should seek an early opportunity to listen to Alfonso, once king of Spain, on the ineffable joys of drinking.

SENSE IN NONSENSE

It is not recorded who declared that "a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men." But whoever it was, he might with equal truth have observed that a great deal of nonsense is relished any time by most men.

In business or pleasure, a laugh is as hungrily sought as anything else that can be in the program. The business of being is involved in so many worries and hardships that the most trivial nonsense helps to lighten the mind.

Comedy lifts the heart and serves as a tonic for many days and that is the reason the public has hung on the words of men like Arrouns Ward, Bill Nye and Mark Twain more readily than the words of a serious-minded statesman.

People love to lose themselves in nonsense. Their souls cry out for laughter. It is their antidote for sorrow and trouble. The greatest tragedies of the stage have produced some of the greatest comedy of all time.

There was no indulging in satire when he remarked, "There is nothing which can be spoken so absurd that it might not be spoken by some one of the public officers." Did he not mean that there is sense in all nonsense?

Great Britain is uneasy about Near East developments, fearing as usual that there will be the Duce to play.

The meekest husband is the one who sees his wife bossing things and kills her joy by saying that's fine because he can't be bothered with such small matters.

A crisis is a sensitive thing. It soon dies of neglect if everybody talks about it.

Now Mussolini says Nazi Germany must have colonies. Why don't you speak for yourself, Adolf?

lean victory because of their incidental gains, or a C. I. O. triumph, because of the 100,000 votes polled by the American Labor Party, which is the Hillman-Dubinsky machine and extremely well disciplined. The simple truth is that all the forces favoring good government and against crime and corruption, including a solidly united press were militantly behind LaGuardia and Dewey. Determined to smash Tammany, they swept aside all the other issues raised and registered a resounding verdict for efficiency and decency in municipal affairs.

IT WAS inevitable that national significance be read into the result because of the increased stature so notable a triumph has given the two principal victors. The chief reason for this is because they both wear the Republican label, and the Republican party's most conspicuous lack is available candidatorial material. Almost overnight two figures, young, vigorous and attractive, emerge immediately by speculation concerning LaGuardia as a 1940 Presidential candidate started. William Allen White, of Kansas, friend of Governor Landon and former Bill Mooser, launched an enthusiastic boom in which he insists the LaGuardia nomination is inevitable.

HOWEVER, there are those who believe, so far as the Republicans are concerned, that Mr. Dewey, though chosen for the lesser office, is the more available of the two. One reason is that he is a real Republican, whereas Mr. LaGuardia is anything but. As a matter of fact, Mr. LaGuardia in national affairs is far more New Deal than Mr. Roosevelt. Formerly an avowed Socialist, he was for the things Mr. Roosevelt has been doing before the President had any interest in them and he voted for Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 as in 1936, all of which, despite Mr. White's enthusiasm and his record as Mayor makes it a little difficult to conceive of him as the standard bearer of the anti-New Dealers, either Republican or Democratic, in 1940.

CONCEDING that the Democratic party in that year will be still New Deal-dominated, the nomination of a LaGuardia by the Republicans would leave the great bulk of the conservatives in the country out in the cold, which, considering that normally they are an undoubted majority, is more than a little ridiculous. The natural division between the parties would disappear and, so far as direction is concerned, the people would be deprived of a choice. It is this possibility that causes the more astute political crystal gazers to consider the Dewey victory more important nationally than LaGuardia's. Young, non-political in his public work, incorruptible, fearless and able, Mr. Dewey's friends say he is progressive, but not radical; in sympathy, of course, with New Deal's "objectives" wholly opposed to New Deal methods, neither a supporter nor an admirer of Mr. Roosevelt, which would seem to make him a more logical candidate for an opposition party. It is impossible to tell what effect eighteen months will have upon the public position of these two men. They may go up and they may go down. There are a lot of things, good and bad, that can happen to them. Nevertheless, the fact remains that their success at the polls has made them Presidential possibilities.

Three Smart Costumes for Football Weekends

Lucille Ball

Ginger Rogers

Rochelle Hudson

Here are three smart new costumes for football weekends these autumn days. Ginger Rogers models an evening gown made of heavy tulle in a glamorous turquoise blue. Stripes of deep brown and contrasting blue of the same material band the bottom of the full skirt. These stripes also form the bodice and shoulder lapels. For tea dancing and the cocktail hour, Rochelle Hudson has chosen a street-length frock of silk crepe.

Green and gold is the theme of the dress. An accompanying cape is of natural lynx and a tan hat with veil and green and tan shoes complete the ensemble. Lucille Ball is wearing an outfit both flattering and appropriate for the trip to the game. The swagger coat is made of a rich gray duvetyn and boasts a full swing back. The dress is of heavy silk crepe and is in contrasting blue color which emphasizes the slim silhouette.

Strictly Personal

THE advertisements in this paper are published for you. They are as truly personal as if they had your name and address at the head of the text.

Great industrialists and local merchants alike use advertising as a means of telling you things you ought to know. They talk about their products . . . articles that will be your own property. It pays well to listen!

Hundreds of necessities, things you need, are described in these pages every day. While you sit and read the advertisements the whole parade of American industry passes before you . . . offering its wares . . . giving you a wealth of valuable information about everything from automobiles to razor blades.

Everybody has to buy some of the things advertised in this paper. Knowing about all of them will save you money.

as she had dreamed it would be. "Yes, of course I remember. I was so frightened . . . I fainted."

"Not frightened now, are you, little sweetheart? Of course not. And tonight . . . a little later . . . when the camp is quiet . . . I'll come to you . . ."

What was he saying? Her heart began to beat unevenly. She felt choked and put her hand to her throat. "I don't think—I understand, Neville."

"Again that queer, short laugh. 'Oh yes, you, loveliest.' He kissed her again, more fiercely, keeping his mouth on hers until she pushed him away."

"I thought you were asking me to marry you," she whispered. "My dear child, why spoil this glorious hour by dragging in the silly old conventions? We love each other . . . we're here in the wilderness where it's easy to be one's natural self . . . and you're going to belong to me. Tonight—"

"Oh, but I couldn't!" "Little coward," he murmured gently, drawing her close again. "It's your conventionality, your fears, that are holding you back in everything. Don't you understand? How can you expect ever to be a real actress . . . to express emotions . . . if you've never felt them? Let me teach you what it is really to love. It's life's greatest experience."

"Oh, Neville," she was close to tears, trembling. "I—I can't . . ."

"If it will make you feel any happier, I may as well tell you the truth, Lucy Lee. Marriage is out of the question because I have a wife in England. Haven't seen her in years, but she won't divorce me." He was silent for a long moment, then his tone was cold, impersonal. "But of course if you don't care enough—there's nothing more to be said." He released her and turned away.

"No, no, Neville . . . I can't let you go. I do love you—" She clutched at his arm, clinging to him in a storm of bewildered emotion.

"Ah—"

Massive triumph in his voice . . . surrender in hers. Another kiss and the night enfolds them in its sweet secrecy. Presently from the other side of the camp there came the sound of motors and a loud hail from approaching cars. The rescue party had returned. Preston and Lucy Lee came back to reality and hurried to meet the incoming automobiles.

Pearl and the other two women were tired and annoyed at the long delay, due to engine trouble which their driver had been unable to locate. The others went immediately to their tents but Pearl asked Preston if he didn't have a drink to offer a half frozen lady who had spent hours on a cold, windy mountain-side?

"Of course," Preston replied, leading the way to the dining tent where, in addition to the tables and benches, there was a radio to furnish entertainment and news of the outside world. Also there was a small cabinet well stocked with liquor.

"Let's see what's on at the Grove," Pearl said, turning the dial. "Oh, wait, wait, the 'Flamingo Room.' She was in a better humor already, smiling at Preston as he poured generous drinks. "Hi . . . this is hot! Want to dance?"

"Not tonight, Auriemma," Preston answered. "Here's your right cap. Better turn in and get some sleep. Six o'clock call in the morning; you know."

As Pearl took the extended glass, the dance music stopped and the India. Not a single private soldier can be spared. Even in the Great War they had to keep their wide garrisons intact. So in case of a blow up in the Mediterranean not a single white trooper could be diverted from India.

Despite the number of British soldiers in Palestine at the present moment it is still inadequate to fulfill Britain's mandatory obligations if a real Arab uprising developed. That is why Britain was so anxious to placate the Arabs recently even at the expense of their pledged word to the Zionists. Had their partition scheme gone through they could have halved their Palestine garrison. But the scheme was rejected and so the Palestine Force must remain.

Clearly as the Cabinet would like to put the screws on Japan for their ravishing of Northern China, they are powerless in the face of the Army's opposition.

In words blunt and to the point, the defense advisers have told the Government not to commit themselves further, but rather to abandon some of their obligations.

So the Government find themselves confronted with either the necessity of abandoning some of their far-flung overseas possessions or the sanctioning of conscriptions. Their dilemma with regard to conscription can best be appreciated when consideration is taken of the fact that during the Great War, two years of the bitterest fighting with colossal casualties had been undergone before they dared even initiate any form of compulsory service.

Britain is—as her history shows—unwilling to give up one square of land once her flag has been planted there, hence the inevitability of conscription.

GLENSIDE WALLOPS "RECS," SCORE, 25 TO 7

A strong Glenside eleven downed the Recs by the tune of 25 to 7. The only highlight for Bristol was a beautiful 95-yard run by Camel Breslin, who intercepted a pass on his own five, and aided by some beautiful blocking ran unmolested to the final chalk line. Passes were the causes of the Recs' downfall, especially in the second quarter when the Eagles scored twice through the air. That fighting marine Joe Stackhouse again stood out for the Recs, also Gige Dougherty and Vandegrift.

ANDALUSIA ELEVEN WINS 6TH STRAIGHT GAME

ANDALUSIA, Nov. 8.—The Andalusia Green Jackets put another feather in their head-gears yesterday when they eked out a close 6-3 victory over the Holmesburg Vagabonds on the former's field on State Road. It was the sixth straight victory for the Andalusians.

According to Coach Diamanti, the Vagabonds were a combination of the big Holmesburg team, Magnolia, and Disston Scholastic and his 150-pound club deserves wonderful recognition for the caliber of playing they exhibited during the contest.

The youngsters from Andalusia outplayed their rivals and would have shut them out but for the trained toe of Art DePalma. DePalma in the second period with the ball on the Green Jackets' forty-two yard line, place-kicked a beautiful field goal to put the Holmesburg clan in the lead.

Firman had yanked a pass out of the third from the mitt of "Sags" Sagolla to score a six-pointer and Gullatto had converted the extra point.

"Sammy's" best run of the day came at the beginning of the third session. A Morrisville punt was downed on the local's thirty yard line. A line play failed to gain but on the next play, Ross carried the leather. He ran to the sidelines and when trapped cut in and after Welsh was taken out by Sagolla had clear sailing to the goal line to complete a 75 yard run.

It wasn't very long after this that Sagolla scored the fourth touchdown. He did this after Tony Orzali had scored but the play returned and St. Ann's penalized fifteen yards for holding. The play brought the ball to the thirty yard line and Sagolla with the best piece of broken field running scored easily. Gullatto place-kicked the extra point.

Ross missed another touchdown later in the period. On a reverse, Bono handed the pigskin to the colored flash. Accardi on the play spilled three Morrisville players which caused Ross to run to the sidelines. As he did this a few of the spectators were crowded on the field and he bumped into them and before he could regain his balance he was thrown out of bounds by Welsh. He made thirty-three yards on the play.

Morrisville showed little in the way of offensiveness. Their only backfield player to show anything was Jack Welsh who was a triple-threat. Twice his hallet-thrown passes were good for first downs and once he dashed around end for a first-down to be responsible for the three Tiger first-downs.

The St. Ann's offense clicked from the start. They were able to score at will if they so desired. Ross gained plenty of yardage around the ends. Bono and Sagolla did the line-cracking with Pico and Orzali doing the blocking.

St. Ann's Morrisville
Mignoni center Lippincott
Angelo right guard Bresley
Gullatto right tackle Kiernan
Firman right end Gavin

LAST PERIOD SAFETY DEFEATS HIGH SCHOOL

By Louis Tomlinson

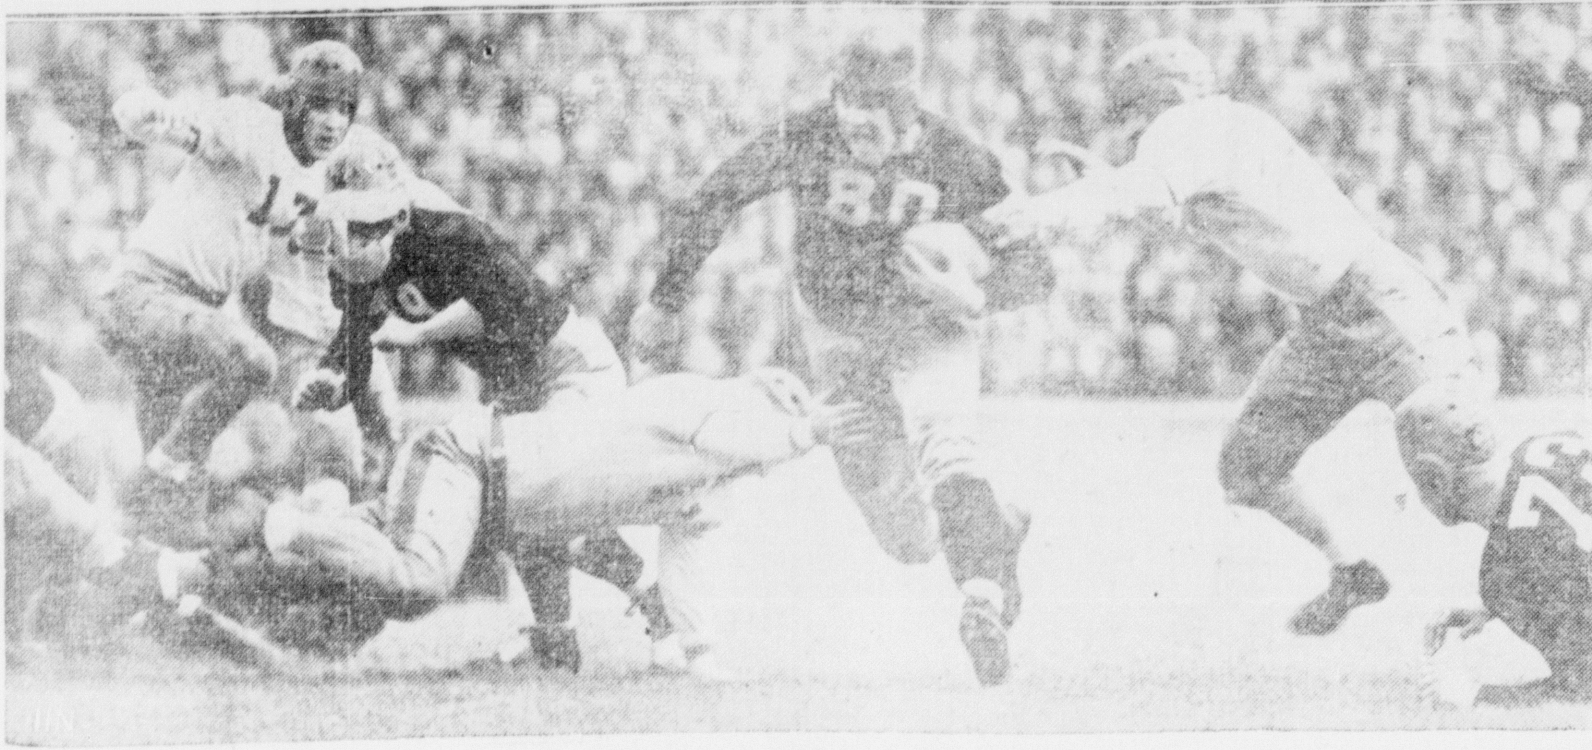

One of the most exciting, thrill-packed games ever to be staged on the local gridiron was waged here Saturday afternoon with a last period safety by Bridgeport being the deciding issue of the game, as the latter eleven upset coach Steve Juenger's boys, 2-0.

The fans, some 1500 of them, who packed the stands on both sides of the field, and around the sidelines, were thrilled time and again at the many spectacular plays that crammed the game with action—sensational passes caught and missed, laterals, substitutions, and even the numerous fumbles that entered the tilt as the tenaciousness of the game bore down upon the players' added more exciting moments.

The visiting aggregation literally went mad on several occasions during the third period as their favorites drove down to within ten yards of the local goal line. But the followers of Juenger's team arose and cheered wildly as Bristol's forward wall drove the Maroon and White back for losses each time they threatened and they got no further. It was truly a spectacle for grid fans to witness and though the local eleven suffered its second successive defeat in a row, nevertheless, Red and Gray rooters as well as the visiting crowd, went home satisfied that they saw one of the best shows put on here in many a moon.
